

Using our website

Do we use 'Cookies' ?

Our website uses cookies, as almost all websites do, to help provide you with the best experience we can. Cookies are small text files that are placed on your computer or mobile phone when you browse websites. You can find more information about cookies here:

<http://cookiepedia.co.uk/all-about-cookies>

Almost all websites use cookies to ensure that you can interact with our website successfully.

We do not use cookies to:

- Collect any personally identifiable information (without your express permission)
- Collect any sensitive information (without your express permission)
- Pass data to advertising networks
- Pass personally identifiable data to third parties
- Pay sales commissions

Forth Psychological Services use third party cookies:

Google Analytics cookies

These cookies help tell us how many people have been to the site before, what time people visited the site and what pages were looked at. No personal information is stored.

For more information, see Google's help pages and Google's privacy policy here:

<https://www.google.com/policies/privacy/>

Removing cookies

If you want to prevent our cookies being stored on your computer in future, you may do so by referring to your internet browser's instructions. You can do this by clicking on the "Help" menu.

You can find out how to do this on your computer here

If you wish to prevent Google from collecting any information about your presence on our website, they offer a tool here:

<https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout>